Sandra Khalili is a partner of the firm and has been successfully resolving disputes for over 20 years, both in and out of the courtroom.

Sandra's practice is focused on general civil litigation. She is particularly adept at advising clients on employment matters as well as complex contractual, real estate, partnership and corporate disputes. Clients appreciate her responsiveness, attention to detail and ability to translate technical issues into everyday language. While Sandra is aggressive in representing her clients' best interests, she treats every client with the utmost respect and discretion.

Sandra has extensive experience in a broad range of business litigation practice areas, including representation of high net worth corporate and individual clients. She is well versed in the complexities involved in doing business in California, across the United States, as well as abroad.

Sandra has substantial expertise in provisional remedies, including pre-judgment attachments. Sandra also uses her skill and expertise in providing clients with pre-litigation counseling, and effectively participating in alternative dispute resolution to solve disputes efficiently and economically. She has a track record for obtaining dismissals, settling complex disputes and for securing seven-figure settlements on behalf of her clients.

Sandra is experienced in working with clients in the fashion, health care, insurance, real estate, transportation and manufacturing industries. Her extensive litigation background enables her to identify and mitigate issues early on, resolving disputes and protecting resources through proactive and strategic planning.
